WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE, AND NOT A drop to driak—The subscribers respectfully take leave to introduce to the public a dalicious and parfocily innocent beverage, styled Leslie's Aromatic Stomach Blitzrs, which they unbesitatingly guarantee as the best in overy respect that has ever been prepared and effered 'er sale. Collected at immense cost from every quarter of the globe, and especially frem Arrshia Peters and the Spice Ielands, the very humerous and costly ingredients of which this cordal is composed have been, after the labor of years, combined and diskilled with such accuracy of proportious and nice chomical science as to bring cut and blend the varied whole in one-delightful aroma, which once enjoyed casts into the shade all rival preparations. It is already appreciated as it deserves in California, the Southern States, and in Britain. In America, where the water percolates through such a mass of decayed vegetable matter that it becomes imprognated to such an axtent with deleterious particles as to render it unfit for human use, and the fruitful mother of a train of subtle diseases, such as summer complaint, diarrhea, dyspepsia &c. A small quantity of this cordial mingled with the daily drink renders it not merely innocuous but salutary. It is the first tende in the world—it refreshes the languid, restores the debilitated, and during the almost tropical heat of our summer is, if taken regularly, the surest preventive against our prevalent disorders. Considering the immense cost of preparation, the subscribers would have been warranted in fixing a very hip price indeed for this article, but being destrous that every
